CHEERFUL DANCE STEPS PERFORMED WITH GRACEFUL ENTHUSIASM

By AnnElise Makin

This year's Night to Remember was called Stories of Love, and during the event, Red Mountain Ranch ballerinas danced their hearts out.

Stars of all sizes, sparkling in colorful costumes, cavorted gracefully across the stage. Elle Eckardt-Hutchings and her daughter, Lindsay Kertesz, had arranged a delightful potpourri of nearly 30 choreographies.

"Let's try that again!" exhorted Elle to her team of coryphées in the dressing room. "I couldn't hear you!" As was tradition, the Smile, smile, smile chant coaxed the fun into the ensemble before the fear of the limelight could sneak backstage.

This kind of pep talk and year-end recital was a first for VIP guest Cupid Xander Bischoff, Elle's 20-month-old grandson. His important job was to present the flowers.

Cupid cared little about how to finagle the foot part of the tights, but loved to play pat-a-cake with the older girls. Then the Business of Love called him and his entourage on stage.

Soon the Starlettes, Star Brights, Super Stars, Rising Stars and Twinkle Stars lit the plain backdrop up with magic. Parents were amazed by the brilliant, advanced choreographies of the senior dancers, and they chuckled at the cute factor of the littles dolls. Some dancers were cast in up to 10 performances. They had to change costumes in a New York minute.

"This is the first year for my youngest, Emma," said Julie Brown with butterfly Emma on her arm. "Dance class is the first thing she wants to do. Dancing also has been very good for her older sister, Katie, as far as grace."

Katie, a third-year student with Elle, had four dances with the Starlettes that night. When Katie performed last year, she attracted her friend, Megan Harmon, a quite mature dancer, to the Red Mountain Ranch Dance Studio.

"Megan saw Katie last year and loved the show," mom Lori Harmon recalled. "Megan has taken classes before, also played soccer for a year, but with Elle, they get a lot more dances. And kids like Megan want to be out there on stage."

While Zoe Wikfors, a Super Star, changed costumes, mom Christine helped with professional acumen. "Zoe has always loved dance class," Christine said, pinning an accessory in place. An instant later, mom rushed out to the theater to see Zoe on stage.

Super Star Hannah Ruckle, who has radiated star power over the years, obviously put all her passion into dance. "Nothing makes me happier than being on stage performing!" Hannah said.

"This is Hannah's sixth year with Elle and Lindsay, and they really allow the dancers to showcase their talent," said mom Lisa. "They also care much about the girls, and take time to get to know them individually."

A special performance treat was Lexi Bailey's solo in red, A Jar of Hearts. Lexi had been with Elle since the beginning in 2005. She had moved to Corpus Christi for a while, but came back in time for the dance classes.

The Stories of Love had been written by dedicated instructors and caring mothers. At the recital, they culminated in a dazzling show. ■

SPECIAL THANKS GOES TO

Lindsay for having the heart she has for dance and her students, and for all her hard work all year; the Red Mountain Community Church for the generous use of their auditorium; and to Kelly Michael and Jerry Wilson from the Red Mountain Ranch Country Club for their continued support.

ARIZONA AQUA STARS compete nationally

By Dawn Abbey

A pair of Mesa Arizona Aqua Stars (AAS) synchronized swim teams won gold medals at the USA Synchro Region D Championships Meet in Las Vegas in May, and have advanced to compete in the national meet in Seattle this month.

"Not only are we the No. 1 Team in the state, but we are also the only team in Arizona to have swimmers qualify for National Teams," exclaimed team recruiter TerriLynne Collins.

The qualifying swimmers are Eryn Schmisser (11/12) and Monica Velasquez-Stiak (13/15). Both girls will attend a national training camp for potential future members of U.S. National Team 1, which represents the U.S. at the Olympics and other international competitions. "Also, we are proud that Aimee Liou, Lindsey Anderson and Sydney Schmisser qualified and attended National Team trials," TerriLynne said.

"Synchronized swimming is a unique combination of swimming, dance and gymnastics performed in water to music," she further explained. The Aqua Stars club offers girls' swimming in teams, from ages 8 to 18, through classes and summer camps.

The girls train at Kino Aquatic Center, located at 850 N. Horne. The center is under the direction of head coach Jill Parr, who has been named 2008 West Zone Coach of the Year, 2009 13-15 National Team Assistant Coach and 2010 Junior Team Development Coach of the Year. The local coaching staff all are former nationally ranked swimmers.

"This nationally recognized, local year-round club is an independent, non-profit organization operated by the Arizona Aqua Star Parent Association," said TerriLynne.

Linda Witter started AAS in 1983. Linda is the current head coach of the Ohio State Collegiate National Champions, and former head coach of the U.S. Olympic Synchronized Swimming Team.

Registration is now open for classes and summer camps. Classes and clinics are available for all ages and proficiency levels. Girls should be 6 years or older, possess basic swimming skills and feel comfortable in deep water without a flotation device. ■

To register, call TerriLynne at (480) 654-8508, or send an e-mail to collins_526@msn.com. Further information can be found at www.azaquastars.org.
